Kaylyn Morton (MBA '14), Founder/Owner, 9points Coaching & Consulting

Kaylyn graduated from the Schulich M.B.A. program in 2013. She holds a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from McGill University and was a member of the Professional Engineers of Ontario (PEO).

In July she launched her company, 9points, where she helps individuals and teams unlock their greatest potential through coaching and team development programs. The skills and experiences she brings to the table come from a broad background; chemical engineering in the oil and gas industry, strategic planning in the aerospace industry and consulting in the human capital practice at Deloitte.

At Deloitte, she worked within a unique service line that focuses on driving change, gaining organization alignment, improving team effectiveness, increasing employee engagement, and accelerating effective execution by driving alignment and accountability through organizations, one team at a time. In her last year at Deloitte, she worked in the Deloitte Greenhouse, which delivers cutting-edge, immersive experiences designed to help clients tackle their complex problems.

She is a proud mom of two young children who have transformed her life and reinforced the importance of nurturing human potential.
