BACKGROUND

Since early 2017 we have been changing the way we offer funding to students. Through consultations with numerous key stakeholders including students, we have created a process that encompasses three guiding principles:

- increased transparency,
- equitable assessments, and
- certainty of funding support.

Note: By submitting this application, you acknowledge and consent for the Financial Aid Office to use your application as preliminary measure of financial need and/or academic excellence for other funding opportunities that may be made available to students in the corresponding study term.

The application will open at the beginning of each study term:

- Bursary and Awards for Fall will open mid-September
- Bursary and Awards for Winter will open mid-January
- Bursary application for Summer will open mid-May*

* Applications for upper-year awards and scholarships are only available in the Fall and Winter terms.

Please review the ELIGIBILITY criteria for the Graduate Bursary Program in the following sections before applying.

APPLICATION FORM

Accessing the Form

The Schulich Graduate Bursary applications for Summer 2024 is now open! The application can be accessed by going to:

Summer 2024 Schulich Graduate Bursary Application - Page 1 of 6 \(yorku.ca\)

Students will be required to login using their Passport York account.

When completing the application form, applicants have the option to save and resume the application at another time. NOTE: Students who resume the application after saving their application form will need to edit any field on the page in order to be able to continue to the next page.

TIMELINES

The deadline to submit the Summer 2024 application is FRIDAY JUNE 7, 2024 at 3:00 PM EST.

Bursary decisions will be communicated by the end of July.

- Notification will go out to all graduate bursary applicants, whether positive or negative.
- All bursary monies awarded will be deposited into your York student account.
- Bursary assessments are final. If students have questions about their application and/or final assessment, please email finaid@schulich.yorku.ca.

***Incomplete and/or late applications will not be accepted*****

Incomplete Applications

Students who do not provide complete applications will not be contacted to request missing information or assessed for funding. The following outlines examples in which an application may be deemed incomplete:

- Missing statement explaining the extenuating circumstances if this option is selected under eligibility.
- Missing supporting documentation that shows current, up-to-date information on Line of Credit and/or Provincial Loan Program (e.g. OSAP) that includes information such as current balance, remaining available credit, most recent transaction(s), cumulative outstanding debt, current loan amount, etc.
- Missing explanation on why a loan was NOT taken out but shows significant deficit in the budget.
- Missing explanation on why the applicant is in a multi-person household but does not declare his/her spousal income or address why his/her spouse does not have an income.

GRADUATE BURSARY PROGRAM

(i) Eligibility

Students must satisfy all criteria as listed in either Scenario 1 or Scenario 2 below to be eligible to apply for the Graduate Bursary Program.

Scenario #1

- I am a graduate level student (except EMBA) registered and paying Schulich tuition for Summer 2024
- I started my program BEFORE Summer 2024
- I DID NOT receive Schulich Entrance Funding when I started my program and I demonstrate financial need.

Scenario #2

- I am a graduate level student (except EMBA) registered and paying Schulich tuition for Summer 2024
- I faced rare and unforeseen extenuating circumstances that occurred within the last three months and impacted my financial situation. (**Statement Required**)

Students are informed about the funding that they will receive for the entire program at the point of admission through the Schulich Entrance Funding Package. Students should refer to their entrance funding offer letter to determine if they received this funding package which was first introduced in 2017 for eligible master level programs.

Do note that there are, however, students who began their studies prior to the introduction of this new funding model. As such, this cohort of students or individuals who face rare and unforeseen extenuating circumstances will be able to apply to the Graduate Bursary Program. Applicants who indicate they faced rare and unforeseen extenuating circumstances must provide a statement describing in detail the unexpected circumstances and/or events beyond their control that occurred and have now resulted in a financial emergency.

International students: Bursary funding is regulated by the provincial government which restricts the eligibility of potential recipients. This application may be used to identify students who are facing rare and unforeseen extenuating circumstances in order to provide them with a very limited number of graduate bursaries.

(ii) Completing the Form

Please refer to the above eligibility requirement. All three criteria (as listed above) MUST be met to be considered for the Graduate Bursary Program. If you have selected the option to be considered for graduate bursary (SECTION 1 of the application form) but do not meet the eligibility requirement, your bursary application will be disregarded.

To be considered for a graduate bursary, applicants must complete the Financial and the Assets & Debt sections of the application.

Financial Information

Please only include resources and expenses allocated for the 4-month academic term only.

Resources

It is expected that students will explore and exhaust all available resources and assets, including, but not limited to, family/spousal contributions, government funding, student lines of credit, professional/personal loans, external awards or scholarships and personal savings.

Expenses

The application form is meant to reflect the financial situation of a student enrolled in a professional business program. The expenses section of the application form will have an “allowable budget” which sets out the expected average expenses of a student living in Toronto for a 4-month period (equivalent to an academic term). The allowable budget is provided below. Students will not be penalized for reporting actual expenses which exceed the allowable budget; rather, such expenses will not be considered in the assessment of financial need unless a reasonable explanation for the excess is provided.

Cost of Living Allowable Budget – (4 months)

Status	Living on Campus	Living off Campus	Living at Home
SINGLE	$ 9,446	$ 12,433	$ 3,836
SINGLE WITH 1 DEPENDENT	$ 17,961	$ 21,821	$ 11,184
SINGLE WITH 2+ DEPENDENTS	$ 25,419	$ 30,691	$ 18,642
MARRIED	$ 12,326	$ 15,313	$ 7,232
MARRIED WITH 1 DEPENDENT	$ 20,841	$ 24,701	$ 14,580
MARRIED WITH 2+ DEPENDENTS	$ 28,299	$ 33,571	$ 22,038

Educational Debt

An expected average educational debt load per year is set out in the bursary application. Only debt related to academic pursuits is taken into account in the assessment of financial need. General consumer debt will not be considered. Including an expected average educational debt load allows a uniform standard to be applied to all students as a starting point and helps to ensure that consumer debt is not disguised as educational debt.

Students who report debt that exceeds the expected debt load per year must provide an explanation in the application.

Additional Information

This section provides students with an opportunity to detail additional factors or unique circumstances that they feel are relevant to the assessment of financial need, and which were not fully captured in previous sections of the application. If students report expenses or educational debt that exceed the allowable budget and/or the expected debt load per year, they MUST provide an explanation in this section for the additional expenses (above the allowable budget) to be considered. Students are expected to provide corroborative documentation to support such explanations.

This section should not be used to explain why the allowable budget numbers do not represent average living costs in Toronto.

(iii) Bursary Assessment Process

The application review process takes place in the month following the closing of said application. A detailed review of all bursary applications is conducted by the Schulich Financial Aid office (FAO).

The review process involves a comparative assessment of all bursary applications; that is, a student's level of financial need is assessed relative to that of all other bursary applicants in the same term of study.

Stage One – Objective assessment

The application review process begins with an objective assessment of financial need. The starting point for every assessment is an assumption that the student's expenses adhere to the allowable budget. While some students may disagree with the numbers in the budget, the purpose of the allowable budget is to apply a conservative and uniform standard to all students, and to reduce the risk that students who spend extravagantly will receive greater bursary awards.

A student's allowable resource/expense shortfall (meaning the difference between the student's reported resources and assets, and the allowable budget expenses for the academic term) will be calculated to arrive at a preliminary assessment of need. At this stage, the FAO will also assume that a student's level of educational debt is in line with the expected debt load per year, as outlined in the application.

Stage Two – Subjective considerations

In the second stage of the process, the FAO may consider actual expenses, actual debt and any additional information and/or unique circumstances reported by the student and supported by corroborative documentation. This will allow the FAO to conduct a more holistic assessment of each student's unique situation.

Expenses exceeding the allowable budget

If a student reports expenses that exceed those set out in the allowable budget, a reasonable explanation must be provided in the application. Examples of reasonable explanations may include the following:

- Significant or unexpected health care costs
- Larger (and hence more expensive) accommodations because a student is a custodial parent or caregiver for an elder or other family member
- Extenuating family circumstances such as disability or illness
- Unexpected expenses, such as those due to fire or theft

The above is not an exhaustive list, but rather is intended to illustrate the type of explanations that the FAO may consider reasonable.

The FAO will assess the explanation provided and may request supporting documentation in order to adjust the student's preliminary resource/expense shortfall to include the actual expense (instead of using the allowable expense amount). If no explanation is provided, or if the explanation is not considered reasonable, the FAO will use the allowable budget amount for that expense when determining the student's resource/expense shortfall.

Educational debt exceeding expected average

If a student reports an educational debt load that significantly exceeds the expected average debt load per year as set out in the application, a reasonable explanation for that excess, as well as corroborative documentation, must be provided. An example of a reasonable explanation may be that the student pursued graduate studies prior to Schulich, and therefore has accumulated more debt than a student coming from an undergraduate program.

If a reasonable explanation is provided and supported by corroborative documentation, the FAO will consider this extra debt, in addition to the student's resource/expense shortfall, in the final assessment of financial need. If no reasonable explanation and/or corroborative documentation is provided, the extra debt will play a relatively small role in the final assessment of the student's financial need.

Additional personal, family or financial circumstances

As students have unique personal, family and financial circumstances, the FAO will consider all additional information provided by the student to arrive at a fair and holistic assessment of the student's situation and level of financial need. Examples of circumstances that may be considered may include:

- Sole caregiver status, family size, number of dependents
- Health and disability status
- Ineligibility for a government loan/line of credit (reasons must be provided)
- Travel costs due to illness of a family member
- Unexpected changes in personal or financial circumstances, such as marital breakdown or loss of a spouse's income

The above is not intended to be an exhaustive list, but rather to illustrate the kind of information that a student may wish to convey to the FAO. It is necessary to provide the FAO with as much information as possible to explain why these factors should be considered in the final assessment of need.

Stage Three - Arriving at a Final Assessment of Need

The primary consideration in the assessment of financial need is the student's resource/expense shortfall for the current academic year. This is because bursary funds are primarily intended to help students meet their expenses for the current academic year. While outstanding prior educational debt load is a consideration, it is secondary to the resource/expense shortfall. After the stage two review, a final assessment of need will be made. This final assessment will then be considered comparatively with the final need assessments of all bursary applicants, and a final ranking will be assigned.

Students will be ranked as high need, medium need, low need or no financial need. A ranking of no financial need may be assigned where, relative to all other applicants, a student who shows little (or no) resource/expense shortfall and/or documented debt load.

(iv) The Disbursement Process

Students will be notified by email about their bursary entitlement and the amount will be posted to their student account. If a student subsequently withdraws in whole or in part from the term, the amount of the bursary will be reduced and a portion or all of it recovered.

Bursary assessments are final. If students have questions about their application and/or final assessment, they are welcome to make an appointment with a member of the FAO by emailing finaid@schulich.yorku.ca. Before doing so, students should note the following:

- They should not assume that their previous term's bursary allocation will be the same as the current term's allocation.
- It is expected that students will have some resource/expense shortfall, as well as outstanding debt during their studies. Therefore, having a shortfall and/or debt does not guarantee a particular bursary amount, or a bursary at all.
- Financial need is determined relative to the need of all other bursary applicants in a given term. Accordingly, a student with some need may not receive funding if the amount of financial need is lower compared to that of the other applicants.
- Because assessments are conducted holistically and on a comparative basis, the FAO cannot specify the precise weight given to specific factors in the assessment of need. Some discretion is necessary to allow the FAO to assist students with exceptional or unique circumstances.

Any student who experiences a significant change in circumstance or encounters an emergency situation after bursaries are disbursed is encouraged to contact the FAO to inquire about additional financial assistance and/or other support which may be available.

(v) Students' Obligations

Students applying for bursary assistance must understand and agree to the following:

1. Students have an obligation to complete the application form honestly, accurately, and completely.
2. If any dishonesty, misrepresentations, or omissions are discovered in the application form, or in the supporting documentation provided by the student, sanctions will be applied. The choice of sanction will be at the discretion of the FAO, the Assistant Dean, Students, or others, as appropriate. Sanctions may include, but are not limited to, cancellation of the bursary award, ineligibility for future need-based financial assistance, and/or a letter in the student's file.

3. The onus is on the students to provide all relevant information to support their bursary application. For example, if a student does not include an explanation for a reported expense that exceeds what is set out in the allowable budget, the reported expense will not be used to adjust the student's resource/expense shortfall.
4. Any applications submitted after the application deadline will not be reviewed.
5. All students are assumed to have read the information contained in this document prior to applying for a bursary.

(vi) Bursary Amount

Students will be assessed relative to the other applications submitted this term. Applicants to the need-based bursary program should demonstrate that they have exhausted all resources and options, such as savings, family support, student loans, and bank loans to help fund their degree. Generally, only students who are deemed as high need will be awarded a bursary. Due to limited funds, the bursary amount will be determined based on the number of applications received and the number of students who were deemed to be eligible for a bursary.
